REPORT:

On May 5th, YRC CEG organized a series of competitions and a talent show, aptly named "Thulir Thiran 24," in commemoration of World Red Cross Day, which falls on May 8th. The festivities commenced at 8:30 AM and extended until 4:00 PM, encompassing a diverse array of activities showcasing the skills and creativity of dedicated volunteers. The event unfolded in a meticulously planned sequence, with the preceding days witnessing spirited contests in various domains. On April 29th, participants engaged in Kavidhai/Poem and Essay writing competitions, followed by Speech/One-minute oration/Art contests on April 30th, setting the stage for the grand culmination on May 5th.

The day commenced with an exuberant display of talent, featuring captivating performances including dance routines and the ancient art form of Silambam, gracefully executed by the adept 'Grey Tags.' At 10:30 AM, the proceedings seamlessly transitioned into an insightful First Aid event, expertly conducted by Pulavar Manickam sir. His invaluable teachings not only illuminated essential first aid protocols but also equipped attendees with the knowledge to effectively respond to emergency situations.

A brief interlude at 10 o'clock provided attendees with refreshing sustenance, rejuvenating them for the festivities ahead. Post-lunch, the ambiance reverberated with melodious tunes as the much-anticipated band show commenced at 1:45 PM. A medley of 17 songs, coupled with five captivating dance performances, enthralled the audience, showcasing the multifaceted talents of the participants.

The crowning moment of the event was the felicitation of the competition winners, who were bestowed with well-deserved prizes and medals. Their exceptional prowess was further highlighted as they graced the stage with captivating performances, serving as a testament to their dedication and skill. As the clock struck 4:00 PM, the curtains drew to a close on this splendid celebration of talent and camaraderie, leaving indelible memories and fostering a deeper sense of community amongst all who attended.
